

The elimination of the "code test" or the "Morse proficiency examination" is a good idea.

I have been a Radar Technician for the USAF since 1980 and a licenced HAM for the last 10 years.

I have never had the inclination to learn Morse code since it was concidered obsolete many years ago.

The entire licence structure, and the U.S. Amateur Band assigned frequencies could use a thourough re-examination.

We are now in the 21st century, however the "Morse code" is strictly a 19th century communications standard.

Thank You
